Lisa Chase has learned it's never too late to learn to read -- now she's taking that message to Washington

By WENDY HANSCOM

To some, Lisa Chase's recent achievements might seem small. The 28-year-old mother of three can now read the papers her two school-age children bring home from their teachers. She recently passed her driver's permit examination test, and she's learning to become an advocate for herself, making phone calls to state agencies and learning how to feed her family a healthful diet.

'I just want to grow more in life.'

LISA CHASE

These accomplishments will take Chase farther than she ever imagined, she said -- from her Rumford Center home to Washington, D.C., where she'll be keynote speaker at the Northeast Regional Even Start conference.

Chase left her Farmington home when she was 14. She moved in with her then boyfriend, now husband, Everett Chase, who is formerly from Locke Mills. When she left home, she also left her schooling behind.

"I liked school when I was young," Chase said, "and when we didn't have it I wasn't very happy. When I was in the older grades I didn't like school, I didn't know how to read and it got harder."

Once she moved in with Everett, she did attempt to go back to school.

"I signed up for it," she said, "but I didn't go. I was afraid to. I was afraid the kids would make fun of me because I didn't know how to read."

So Chase stayed home. She married Everett when she was 20 and they have three girls, Helen, 8; Gladys, 7; and Brenda, 3.

Over the years she said she made a few attempts to learn to read better, but somehow it never seemed to work out.

But about a year-and-a-half ago, her pastor helped sign her up with the Literacy Volunteers of the Greater Rumford Area. The agency also referred her to the Even Start program.

Even Start is a federally funded program that promotes family literacy. Instructors work with parents and children in their homes. The Northern Oxford County Even Start Project works with 15 eligible families living in the Bethel, Dixfield, Canton, Carthage, Peru, Rumford and Mexico areas.

To be eligible for the program, a parent must read below the eighth-grade level, or want to work toward a GED diploma. He or she must also have at least one child age 7 or younger.

Even Start instructors visit homes weekly, and families also participate in potluck suppers, parent meet-

KICKIN' TO THE TOP--Brett Webber, from South Dennis, Mass., has plenty of wind left as he nears the finish line in Saturday's Hike/Bike/Run, sponsored for the seventh year by the Mahoosuc Arts Council. Bethel runners led the pack this year: Kirk Siegel (23:50) was the first finisher among the men, Nancy Babcock (30:23) was the first woman, and Roger Zimmerman (32:34) took first in the Masters Division. Tyler Cousins of Falmouth was the top finisher in the mountain bike race. The weather for this year's Fall Festival/Columbus Day Weekend was ideal, and thousands of visitors and local people found their way out-of-doors to enjoy the region's autumnal attractions. The foliage color may have been just a bit past peak, but here at the peak of Locke Mountain, the bright scarlet berries of mountain ash still sparkled.

Municipal workload leads more towns to consider hiring a professional manager

By WENDY HANSCOM

Small towns across the state are struggling to keep up with the increasing workload involved in running a municipality.

Some, such as Greenwood, are debating hiring town managers, while others are considering increasing the size of the selectmen's board to spread the work around.

In Andover, one selectman resigned recently, citing personal reasons and an ever-increasing workload as her reasons for leaving the board.

"The responsibility is great and so are the number of hours required and the liability," said Andover selectman Kathy Williamson, who will officially resign as selectman in March, after serving two years of a three-year term. "I could easily put 60 hours a week in here to keep track of things."

Although Andover residents have never formally discussed hiring a town manager, Williamson said she thinks it's time they did.

"With a volunteer committee," she said, "people have other commitments. No matter how hard you try, it seems something's always left hanging. You're getting fewer and fewer people willing to run for selectman. But it may be very difficult to find a town manager for a small town like Andover. It's difficult to pay them a big enough

State biologists predict: Flagging white-tail herd will result in fewer kills

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Maine's 1994 moose hunt ended last week with 90 percent of the permit holders getting their moose, but deer hunters this year face dimmer prospects.

When deer hunting season begins Oct. 31 (or for Maine residents only on Saturday, Oct. 29) hunters will find a reduced deer population.

State biologist blame the white-tail drop off on last winter's severe weather conditions.

Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife biologists, after assessing the effects of the winter weather and other factors on the deer population, reduced the permit allocations by approximately 12,000 (25 percent), and predict a deer kill slightly below 1993.

According to deer biologist Gerry Lavigne, "the winter of 1993-94 was slightly above the 20-year average severity in all but eastern Maine. When severe winters occur, we typically take steps to compensate for above-average winter losses by reducing the quota of does allocated to hunters."

The issuance of roughly 32,800 permits will "achieve a doe quota of nearly 5,250 statewide. We also anticipate a fawn harvest of about 3,150 among archers and any-deer permittees. Due to the effects of the preceding winter, the buck kill (approximately 16,200) may be slightly less in 1994 than was achieved during the past couple of years.

"If projections are accurate, Maine's deer harvest during 1994 should approximate 24,600. Overall, 27,402 deer were registered during 1993."

A new factor this season is the implementation of "a landowner preference system to our any-deer permit lottery. A maximum of 20 percent of available any-deer permits will be issued to qualifying landowners (and their domiciled dependents) for each DMD. Landowners not drawn in this lottery, scheduled for Sept. 23, are included in the pool of applicants for the remaining any-deer permits. The landowner preference lottery is in-

Bethel aims to get more street signs

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Bethel adopted a formal street-name system last year, but you'd never know it by driving around.

And if you're a visitor or emergency services responder unfamiliar with the town, finding your way around is pretty much a guessing game.

A recent street-sign survey by the Bethel Police Department found that only 10 of the possible 105 signs in town are now standing.

The town selectmen are now looking at how best to get the town re-signed.

Last week the board decided to put up a trial run of two dozen wooden signs, but that decision has now been put on temporary hold, following town manager Madeleine Henley's discovery that metal signs for the town might not be as expensive as first thought.

The decision to try the wooden signs was made following a report by Sally Taylor, a Broad Street resident who spent the past few months exploring what types of signs are

Postal Service will appeal Locke Mills ramp ruling

By ALISON ALOISIO and WENDY HANSCOM

The U.S. Postal Service will appeal a ruling by the Greenwood Planning Board denying permission for a handicapped access ramp in front of the Locke Mills Post Office.

Marsha Daniels, an architectural-barrier-compliance specialist at the Portland Regional Post Office, said the appeal with probably be filed within 30 days.

Handicapped access ramps are now required by the federal government on all post offices, but last week the Greenwood board ruled that a ramp proposed for the Locke Mills office would violate the town's setback requirements.

The Post Office had submitted a plan for a six-foot wide ramp to run parallel to the front of the building. But town ordinances do not allow for construction within 50 feet of the center of a roadway.

The front of the Post Office is 50 feet from the centerline. The ramp would be inside the required setback.

Planning Board chairman Wayne Hakala told the board he initially favored approval of the ramp.

"The Appeals Board granted a variance to allow the construction

FAMILY READING TIME--Lisa Chase of Rumford Center now takes time out every day to read to her youngest daughter Brenda. Chase and her family are part of the Even Start Project. Instructors work with young children to improve their reading skills. Adults can learn to read better or get help pursuing a GED diploma. Chase will travel to Washington, D.C. later this week to speak at a regional conference on the program.

CPS gets $2,000 worth of skis

By WENDY HANSCOM

The Crescent Park School has been awarded a $2,000 equipment grant from REI, an outdoor outfitter.

Linda Gamble of Bethel wrote the grant request in April. She received word last week that the school will get 20 new equipment packages, each including cross-country skis, bindings, poles and boots.

The equipment will be added to what's already on hand, and it will be used in the school's physical education classes and after-school cross-country ski program.

"We've had a lot of support for our cross-country ski program from local ski businesses in the past," said CPS principal David Murphy, "but this was our first attempt to bring in grant money for it. Linda wrote the grant on behalf of the CPS/PTA, and we're very excited about adding the equipment to the program."

HE BLAMES THE UNIONS

To the Editor:

I read with interest the article on the MEA results and was surprised to find the same old excuse for the poor grades. It's the parents' fault. I would challenge Supt. Jenkins to please produce a copy of one of these reports stating that "Students of parents without college education cannot learn as well or score as high as students of parents with college education." I honestly don't believe this is so, but if you produce a document stating this I will then believe it.

My personal opinion is that this is just an excuse, typical of union members: when your job performance is poor you blame someone else. These people's job is to teach children and when they can't do this they lay the blame not only on the children but on their parents for not having gone far enough in school themselves.

I was also surprised to read that a minimal amount of writing assignments are given in English due to the enormous amount of task of correcting them, according to the English department, and that they get plenty of writing in their other classes. Did someone really make that absurd statement. I was always under the impression, and Mrs. Gunther correct me if I am wrong, that English was for writing and literature was for reading.

If the job of correcting English papers is too taxing for the English teacher, perhaps someone who can do the job should be put in the position. That's the way it happens in the real world, the world not controlled by a union.

SHE BLAMES 'INCREDIBLY UNCHALLENGING CURRICULUM'

To the Editor:

As a senior who took the MEA's last year, I have a few things to say. I don't believe the fact that neither of my parents went to college has any bearing on my MEA scores, which were good, by the way. The only thing that should matter is the motivation of the students. Motivation or wanting to learn are values that my parents, who never went to college, instilled in me.

For Mr. Jenkins, a superintendent who has never introduced himself to the student body, whom I have never even met or seen, to suggest that as an average my class did poorly because of our parents is preposterous.

Also, for Mr. Davis to contend that a disproportionate number of the class's better students transferred to Gould Academy is very unfair and demeaning. The G.P.A.s of our class's top ten are better than several classes in preceding years. The administration is perhaps trying to take the blame off the incredibly unchallenging curriculum used in our district.

I say stop blaming parents, storm days, and the large number of students tested in one room; blame instead students who just don't care, budget cuts, and an unchallenging college preparatory program.

Editor's note: It is the Citizen's policy to publish unsigned letters, but exceptions will be made in cases, such as this, where doing so appears to be warranted. The writer of the letter is a senior at Telstar.

THANKS FOR HIKE/BIKE/RUN HELP

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Mahoosuc Arts Council I would like to thank everyone who contributed to the success of the seventh annual Mahoosuc Arts Council's Hike/Bike/Run on Oct. 8.

An event of this complexity could not happen without the help of many community volunteers and the expertise of the Sunday River support staff.

The Mahoosuc Arts Council would also like to thank our local visual artists, Dana and Debra Gallant, who designed our race T-shirts and Grant & M. Gorn for printing them. Other race sponsors this year were Sunday River Ski Resort, Gould Academy, Boise Cascade, Key Bank, Empire Linen, Crisposts, and the Sun-Journal/Sunday.

Prizes were donated by area businesses including Sunday River, Key Bank, Telstar Video, Great American Ski Renting Co., True North Adventure Wear, Post Sports, The Java House, The Fashion Basket, Unicorn Flower Shop, The Frame Shop, Preb's Pharmacy, Bonnama Pottery, Bethel Savings Bank, Forbici, Just Because, Janet Willie, Mt. Mann and Wild Rose.

Monies raised through this event are used to continue supporting programming in the arts in the communities and schools of SAD44.

STATE POLICE HONOR BUS MECHANICS--SAD44 bus mechanics Tom Sweetser (left), Stewart Mason, Virgil "Tink" Conkright and transportation director Richard "Sonny" Blake recently received certificates of merit from the Maine State Police commending their "high priority of safety." State police inspect SAD44 buses twice a year, according to Blake, who said the troopers were "very impressed with the condition of the buses." ings and field trips.

While Chase said she's not sure she'll pursue a GED diploma, she wants to continue to improve her reading skills.

So far, the program has helped her get her driver's permit, and she's thrilled to be able to read stories to her children.

"I just want to grow more in life," Chase said. "If I get my driver's license, I won't have to have someone drive me around or find a bus. I'd kind of like being here (at home), but I'd like to do more with my kids at school."

Chase's self-confidence is also getting a boost.

She can now sit through her children's school papers instead of waiting for her husband to read them.

She also tackled, with renewed enthusiasm, working with the state to get a Medicaid card.

Chase had tried in the past to get the medical card, but got nowhere.

Together with her Even Start instructor, Chase wrote a letter to the state on the program's portable computer.

Chase got the necessary paperwork back and that was good, she said, except the state wanted her to call them for an interview, and she didn't have a phone. She practiced with her instructor what to say on the phone. Then she made a couple of calls from a pay phone and got the card.

Even Start program coordinator Nancy Murphy of Bethel said she's more than pleased with Chase's progress.

"Her attitude toward books and reading to her children daily has improved her self-confidence," Murphy said.

Chase's Even Start instructor is just as pleased.

"The girls have started doing better in school," said Martha Kelly, the family's early childhood instructor. "Everett is just one test away from his GED. They're just the perfect Even Start family."

A lot of firsts

Now that Chase has improved her reading skills, she's got another project to undertake -- public speaking.

On Oct. 16, Chase, accompanied by Murphy and Kelly, will take her first airplane trip. The three will travel to Washington, D.C., and on Oct. 17, Chase will speak to Even Start instructors and coordinators from 12 northeastern states.

Chase said she has never spoken in front of a large group and admits to being a bit nervous.

"I haven't been sleeping very good," she said, but she's excited about seeing the city and wants others to know about her successes.

She'll deliver the speech in an interview style, with Murphy asking questions and Chase answering them. She'll practice on the Crescent Park School stage later this week.

"You should have seen her giving the speech the other day," her husband laughs, "stuttering and stammering."

But even with a bit of affectionate teasing, Chase seemed ready to meet this challenge.

"Lisa has a lot of grace," Kelly said. "She takes everything in stride."

While she's gone Chase's children will stay at a daycare center. It will be their first time in such an environment.

Chase said the Even Start program has been an interesting challenge and she'd recommend others who need help to sign up.

"It would help them to learn a lot about themselves -- how to take care of themselves and their kids better," she said. "They're not just playing teacher, they're more like family."

Anyone interested in more information on the program can contact Murphy at 824-2839 or 364-2012.

Signs

available and how much various signage options would cost.

The prices ranged from approximately $100 (installed) for metal signs and poles, to less than $30 for simple wooden signs installed by volunteer labor, Taylor reported.

She said volunteers have already offered to help put the signs in, and local artist Don Katlin has provided three style/price options.

Selectman Bob Chadbourne expressed doubt that enough volunteer labor could be rounded up to do the entire town, but the board eventually agreed to go ahead and install 24 signs in the village area.

Those two dozen signs would completely sign the village area, but another 81 would be needed to finish the job in outlying areas of town.

If the village signs fared well during the winter, the selectmen said, the re-signing process would be extended to the outlying areas next year.

Prices to be rechecked

But the plan to go ahead with the wooden signs was put on hold at the end of the week, when Henley learned (at the Maine Municipal Association annual convention) that metal signs might cost far less than Taylor had estimated.

The town manager said she would present the new figures to the selectmen at their next meeting. She said the new prices she found were less than half what Taylor found.

Maine's Bloody Autumn

By MIKE BROWN

Maine sights and sound have now transformed from summer pleasures and autumn colors to the annual blood sport harvest of wild animals.

"Sports" columnists and Maine media at tout the thrill of kill, the bloodied beds of pickup trucks stuffed with mortuary moose which only hours before stood inquisitively and patiently tame while hunters picked and chose the biggest rack du jour.

Busy abattoir weighing stations staffed by a gaggle of biologists, reporters, photographers and just plain gawkers awaited each moose hunting vehicle hoping to see the "big one."

The first day of Maine's moose season ended with the score: Hunters, 407; Moose, 0. The game is called at 1,200. Can moose hunting really be called a "sport"?

Soon comes Maine's deer hunt, bear, upland birds and 25 species of waterfowl seasons. And then follows the trapping of raccoon, mink, otter, beaver, marten, muskrat, fisher, fox, coyote and bobcat.

The Maine woods in fall and winter is very bloody. The killing of wild (and some nearly tame) animals is necessary, claim its multi-million-dollar state lobby, to sustain Maine's (and non-resident hunters) killer lifestyles.

The blood sports industry, ad nauseam, cites chapter and verse of the Bloody Biblical study of 1990 (Staff Paper No. 423) of University of Maine staffers, which said that the economic value of hunting in Maine was between $183-$291 million.

However, the same study estimated that the combined inland and marine sports fishing economic value was between $436-$768 million. Further, that the economic value of non-consumptive uses of Maine's wildlife resources was about $56 million. Non-consumptive means any activity like photography, where a person enjoys wildlife but the creatures are not removed from the wild.

Clearly then, one can turn the blood sports lobby argument on itself by saying that only about 26 percent of the "economic value" of Maine's wild creatures comes from killing wildlife and 74 percent from fishing and non-consumptive use.

So -- why kill moose, deer, bear and all the rest? Certainly they are not dangerous or pests.

Well, it's because of the powerful blood sports industry of firearm and ammunition makers, the iron and steel manufacturers of hunting paraphernalia, the stealth hunting clothiers, the media flacks, the legions of hunting clubs, the National Rifle Association bleating that Bambi lovers are confiscating constitutional rights. (The right to bear arms is a constitutional right. The licensed killing of public wild animals is a state optioned privilege.)

Blood sports is so powerful it is politically immune in Maine. Large wild animals in Maine like moose and deer are gambling lottery fodder even before they are slaughtered. The state "management of game" in Maine is an annual $15 million joke book which has, in effect, confiscated all wild animals into locked pages of a self-preservation, untouchable bureaucracy.

Maine should become an all-state sanctuary for wild animals and a mecca for fishing and non-consumptive uses of Maine's wildlife and its habitat. As such, the economic value of this unique endeavor would quickly exceed any ill-conceived need for slaughtering Maine's wild animals.

Otherwise, there will come the day as in Europe and other former killing fields of the earth when there will be no wild animals.

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

A variety of items were discussed at the Bethel Historical Society's October monthly meeting highlighting "What's It" and collectibles. Several items stumped the group, and their purposes and names remain mysteries.

During the business portion of the meeting, president Charles Raymond announced that the next meeting would be held on Nov. 3 and would feature a slide presentation on the Richardson Lakes by Randall H. Bennett, who is editing the forthcoming book to be published by the society in 1995.

The "Artifact of the Month" was announced as a book given by Dr. Moses Mason to his brother Ayres: "Oration of the Life and Character of Gilbert Motier de Lafayette," published in 1835. It is the gift of Harriett Byrd Donahue of Keene, N.H., great-granddaughter of Ayres Mason (1800-1890).

President Raymond welcomed Persis Post back as head of the Special Project Committee and thanked Sarah Stevens, who served as head during the past year. He also announced that the 1993 audit report of the society had been completed and was available for members to review.

The president announced that later in the month the 150th birthday of C.A. Stephens (1844-1931) would be observed in Norway and urged members to attend some of the events, beginning with a lecture at the Norway Historical Society on Stephens, Oct. 14, 7 p.m. by Rep. Herb Adams.

Refreshments celebrating pumpkins, peanuts and potatoes were introduced by Persis Post and served to all those attending the meeting.

Planning board approves riprap

NEWRY--A landowner here got the OK last week to place riprap in Barker Brook. Jennifer Pitcher received permission from the Newry Planning Board to place a stone riprap on an elbow of Barker Brook in her Coombs Village property. The brook has eroded land close to her well, she said. The work also requires state Department of Environmental Protection approval, and a permit-by-rule application has been submitted to the DEP, Pitcher told the board.

Stump dump closed

ANDOVER--The Andover burn pile, white goods pile, stump dump, tire pile and brush pile will be closed at the landfill until further notice, selectmen announced last week. The landfill is being covered by Andover contractor Richard Pelletier. While the covering work is underway, the landfill site will be closed for at least two weeks. The garbage dumpster and recyclable trailer, however, will remain open.

Tree puts out Bear River power

NEWRY--A large tree knocked out power Sunday evening in Newry's Bear River Valley. The lights went out at 9:53 p.m. and came back on at 3:45 a.m., according to a Central Maine Power spokesman. It took two CMP crews to remove the tree and get electrical service back on line, the spokesman said.

Burglars caught while deputies dine

SOUTH PARIS--When a German couple returned from a hike on Caribou Mountain recently, they found their car broken into and all their camping gear and clothes missing. A week later, on lunch break at Burger King in South Paris, four Oxford County Sheriff's deputies spotted a car matching the description of a vehicle seen near the Evans Notch parking lot where the German couple's car had been parked. A deputy questioned the driver, David Wheeler, 26, of Bridgton and a friend. The deputy reported smelling marijuana in the vehicle, and a small bag of the drug was found on the friend. The car was searched, and Cpl. Chris Wainwright found what appeared to be 300 doses of blotter acid, and possibly a trunkload of stolen goods. The car was impounded, and a search of Wheeler's apartment was conducted. Police found ID cards, camping gear, clothing and more at the apartment. The items may be connected to several break-ins this summer along the Maine and New Hampshire border. Police say it may take some time to identify all the items and their possible owners. The German couple, Jurgen Falkenberg and Ingrid Heusler, picked up some of their belongings last week. Following the burglary, the Rostay Inn in Bethel let them stay overnight for free, and the pair got some clothes from the Bethel Area District Exchange.

Poll: Brennan in the lead, King closing

PORTLAND--A recent poll conducted by a New Jersey firms shows that if the election were held now, Joe Brennan would be Maine's next governor, but Angus King is closing in fast, and Judy Collins is a distant third. Of the 500 people surveyed, Brennan received 38 percent, King 36 percent, Collins 14, Jonathan Carter, 3 percent, and 10 percent were undecided. The poll, released by WCSH and WLBS television stations, has a margin of error 4.5 percent.

Wind farm construction stalled

CARRABASSETT VALLEY--Endless Energy Corporation announced last week that construction has been halted on its Sugarloaf Mountain wind farm. The company blamed a late construction start for the decision to put the project on hold. Work on the three-turbine system did not start until mid-September. Construction crews ran into problems anchoring the turbines' foundations. The turbines could not be anchored in bedrock close to the surface, so the project was redesigned for larger concrete foundations. With winter approaching, the company decided it was too risky to transport tons of concrete up the mountain using a large skidder, according to company officials.

AAA wants industries to clean up first

PORTLAND--The AAA of Maine is claiming that the automobile is no longer the main cause of summertime ozone smog, and is urging that clean air controls be re-directed toward industry, big trucks and other mobile sources. The AAA Maine recently released a study showing that auto and light trucks currently release less than one-third of overall emissions that lead to severe ozone problems in Atlanta, Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, Houston, Los Angeles, Milwaukee, New York, Philadelphia and Washington D.C. The study, performed by Energy & Environmental Analysis, Inc. of Arlington, Va., indicates that since 1970 the reduction in auto emissions has offset the growth in vehicle population in the 10 worst ozone cities in the country. AAA wants this study included in states' pollution control plans. "Because the automobile is less than a third of the ozone problem, it shouldn't bear the brunt of two-thirds of the controls in many of these plans," stated an AAA press release.

Errol man chases down car thieves

ERROL, N.H.--Bill Wight, an Errol, N.H. logger, chased down two men Sept. 30, who police say stole Wight's car that morning. At 3 a.m. that morning, Wight took his pickup to work and left his car parked at home. At about 4:30 p.m., Wight was driving a tractor-trailer truck load of logs on Route 26 when he met his own 1989 Chevrolet Beretta headed the other way. Wight said he didn't think his wife was on the road that early in the morning, so he jumped into his pickup and took after the car. Wight was delayed by changing vehicles and had to do some catching up, but after following the car for about three miles he came up behind it. Wight pulled along side the car once, but the driver tried to force him off the road, he said. Wight pulled in behind and bumped the car with his pickup. The driver pulled over and Wight managed to keep two Rumford men there until police arrived. Matthew Fowler, 18, and Robert Niemi, 19, were arrested and transported to Coos County jail. The two men are also suspected of stealing a car in Rumford.

From the Bethel Police log: Arrests, kids is loud diabolism debate

On Monday, Oct. 3, police stopped a Gorham, N.H. juvenile for speeding. A license check revealed that the juvenile was driving with a suspended license. He was taken into custody. During a search of the vehicle, police found a "small" amount of marijuana and some drug paraphernalia. The vehicle's passenger, Jesse J. Edmondson, 19, of Gorham, N.H. told police the drug paraphernalia was his, and said he also knew the driver was operating without a license. He was summonsed for possession of drug paraphernalia and allowing the unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

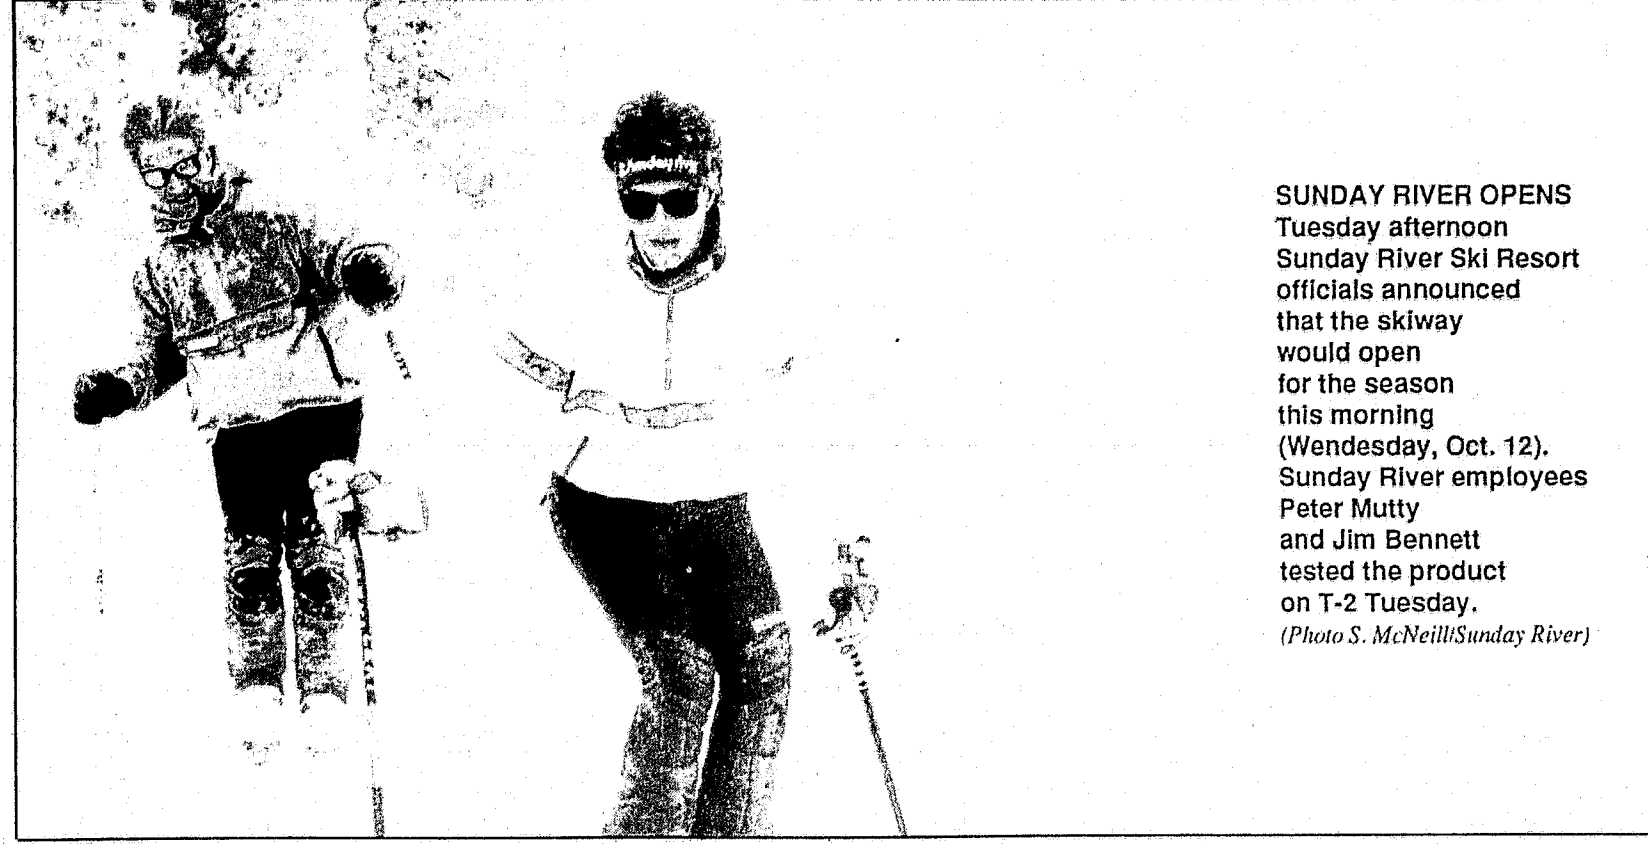

On Wednesday, Oct. 5, police also arrested Roger C. Smith, 41, of Bethel on an outstanding warrant for failure to pay a fine.

On Thursday, Oct. 6, a Steam Mill Village resident reported hearing a dog barking in the woods. Police found a black lab with its chain wrapped around a tree. The dog was friendly, well-behaved and well-trained, the police report said. It was turned over to the town animal control officer.

In other police news last week, on Friday, Oct. 7, police responded to a report of two juveniles standing in the middle of Vernon Street "arguing about Satan." When police arrived two young males were spotted at the intersection of Main and Vernon streets, but they ran off. No other people were contacted.

Later the same day police were called to Gould Academy. The girls field hockey coach reported that a man was bothering the players. The man was asked to leave and did.

On Saturday, Oct. 8, a Big Apple employee told police a heated argument between two groups in the parking lot had "turned ugly." When police arrived one group had left, and the other group told police they were headed home.

of a ramp at the Town Hall in 1989, which set a precedent to allow this ramp," Hakala said.

But board member Heywood Sawyer disagreed. "The longer it goes on, the easier it is to follow," Sawyer said. "If we do it every time the logical conclusion is that the ramps can be put anywhere."

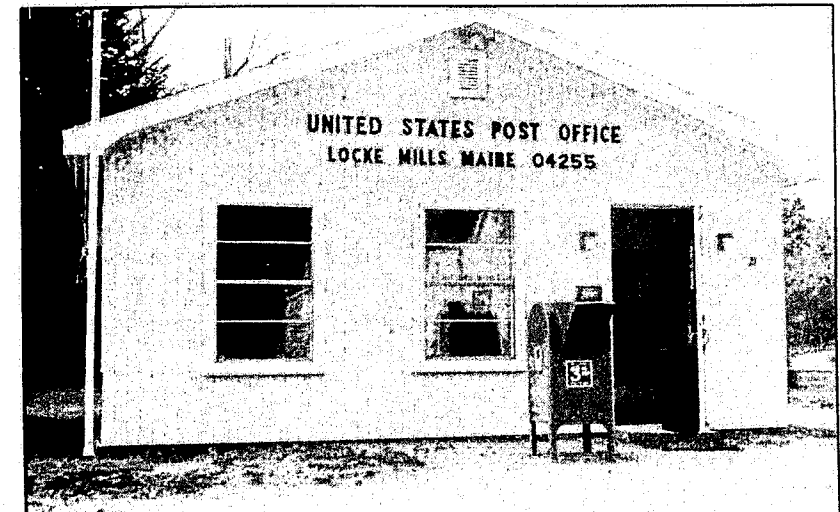

Planner Betty Curtis agreed, "We don't have to go with the precedent. Then it's the Post Office's problem," she said. "If the Post Office doesn't like it, they can go to the Appeals Board."

Ultimately the board unanimously turned down the request.

This is not the first time a small town has denied the Postal Service permission for such a ramp.

Newfield also rejected a ramp for its post office, and the town's board of appeals turned down a Postal Service variance request.

The Postal Service is not currently pursuing the Newfield matter any further, Daniels said.

salary to get them interested in the job."

About 50 percent, or 243, of Maine's towns have hired some sort of professional help, according to the Maine Municipal Association.

Professional administrators working with elected officials include town managers, city managers and administrative assistants.

About 20 percent of the professionals working for Maine towns are administrative assistants, according to the MMA. Towns with administrative assistants do not need to adopt the town manager form of government.

In Greenwood a committee is currently studying whether the town should consider hiring a town manager, an administrative assistant or continue to leave town business to the three-person board of selectmen.

The committee has been meeting regularly over the summer and has heard from local town managers, town clerks, administrative assistants and others.

Greenwood selectmen met with the committee last week and said they thought that in most areas they were keeping up with the job demands.

Selectman chair Marie Bartlett told the committee that she puts about six hours a week into the job, and "all the paper work gets filled out."

Selectmen Harry Swan and Carl Curtis said they both wanted proof that a manager would save the town money.

"It would be kind of foolish," Swan said Monday, "to hire a person, just to have them, and spend more money."

Ray Seames, who sponsored the article asking the town to look into hiring a manager, said the committee has benefited greatly from hearing from town managers and others from nearby towns.

"We're still gathering facts," Seames said Monday. "(The people who have spoken to the committee have) said up front they're prejudiced for their system. They say we need to know what we want for a manager, so we get what we wanted. They were also emphatic that if we hire an administrative assistant, we have a written contract. We're really just still gathering facts and we've set November as a time to gather our thoughts and make a list of what Greenwood might want. I have felt right along that's why I put the article in, and I haven't changed my mind. We're trying to be very open minded at this point. We're trying not to get locked into one direction so that in the end we'll recommend what's best from the town."

Committee chairman Al Curtis said the group will probably come up with a recommendation late next month.

"We're still investigating the pros and cons," Curtis said. "We'll make a decision in late November on whether or not we'll put in an article asking for a town manager or just give our recommendation to the voters."

The committee meets next on Oct. 20 with Buckfield Town Manager Cindy Dunn.

The selectmen have also been asked to meet with the committee again in November.

OK, WE'VE GOT IT THIS HIGH, NOW WHAT DO WE DO?--The seventh-grade Telstar Middle School class found out last week what it was like to be slave labor. The class has been studying about how the Egyptian pyramids were constructed. When some had difficulty believing that the work could be done with slave labor and some primitive tools, engineer Joe Aloisio of Newry and the middle school staff volunteered to show them how it was done. A two-ton block of concrete was trucked in from Sunday River Ski Resort and the students first tried to drag the block by tying a long rope around it and pulling, but the rope snapped before the block moved. Pry bars were applied and the students managed to lift the block up off the ground enough to slide some logs under it. They then lifted the other side and placed more logs under it. The concrete block could then be pushed on the log rollers. The class then reversed the process, and settled the block back on the ground.

tended to recognize those land-owners who provide deer hunting access to others (including access by permission only).
Lavigne provided the following insight into winter severity and its effect on Maine's deer herd: "Since Maine is near the northernmost limit of the white-tailed deer's range, the severity and duration of winter weather exerts considerable influence on deer survival and abundance. Our white-tails are not well-adapted to moving about in deep snow, and their dietary needs cannot be met if they must subsist on poor-quality winter forages for more than 10 to 12 weeks. Periodically, a severe winter (or a series of them) causes high winter mortality and a population decline. Conversely, mild winters enhance deer survival and they enable the herd to increase.

"Monitoring snow and temperature conditions in deer wintering areas reflects the conditions deer must endure while trying to find food, escape predators, and stay warm. Deer survival in winter is dependent on their mobility in snow. When snow becomes deeper than their knee-joints (8 to 12 inches), deer move into wintering areas. These wintering habitats generally consist of mature conifer forest whose evergreen canopy helps to intercept snow and wind. Winter forage usually is nearby in openings and hardwood forests. Deer wintering areas usually exhibit the shallowest snow depths available to local deer.
"Snow depths exceeding 12 inches progressively limit deer mobility; when snow exceeds 18 inches, deer may be restricted to their well-worn trails in the best cover. When severely restricted, a deer cannot find enough food to sustain itself. At these times, a deer must use up its own reserves of body fat and protein just to stay alive. When severe cold and deep snow last for more than 10 weeks, those deer which entered winter with little fat (primarily fawns and mature bucks) become progressively weaker and may ultimately die from malnutrition.

"The severity of winter weather exerts many other subtle effects on the herd. Losses to coyotes, bobcats, and dogs are directly related to the relative severity of winter."

Curator Larry Billings has given several items to the Historical Museum: a piece of glass, a classic, a fine collection of tins (which are colorful and interesting) and a book on democracy.

The Historical Society feels its 15th year has been a success. Many thanks to the people of the area for their support and interest. Curator Billings says he has obtained some brochures on Maine and New England in general. He plans eventually to share some of the information in them with the society. He says it is surprising that though much has been written about our state and this region a lot of it is not very useful or significant. Perhaps that is true of any subject. The society observes that every country has its art, literature, culture, and history. There is far too much for any of us to study it all, but we can try to cultivate an appreciation for all we can. The society tries to help in some small way.

Songo Pond

By ALICE KIMBALL

The moose and loons are still enjoying the water of Songo Pond.

I spent the past week at The Cape in Otisfield while Bethel and Craig took their annual anniversary vacation enjoying and exploring Nantucket Island. With Jonathan and David Turner they climbed Mt. Chocoma on Sunday.

Rodney and June Wentzell visited their mother, Mrs. Millie Wentzell, over the weekend and also attended their 55th class reunion at Gould Academy.

Other visitors who have shared the lovely fall days at the Wentzell cottage are Mildred Wentzell and Arlene Plante from Gorham, N.H., Martha Jane Costello and Fannie Smith from Berlin, N.H., -- also some nieces and nephews -- Pearl Nash from Connecticut, Evelyn and Sheldon Towle from New Hampshire, and Phyllis Dow and Jill Irons from Norway.

Norma Salway met Kassi and Kaitly in Auburn Saturday and enjoyed picking some apples before coming home for an overnight.

Louise Chapman has been storing wood for the upcoming winter. My sister and I helped her one day, and Lee Billings has been loading it in his truck.

On Friday, I went to the Homecoming dance with my friends Jenn and Laura; we had a nice time. The same evening, a hymn sing was held at the North Woodstock Meeting House. Bridget Billings and Alyson and Kara Jacques lent their voices to the occasion.

Mandy McInnis and her parents went to look at Gordon College on Monday. Mandy had an interview, and both she and her parents thought that the campus was beautiful.

Bridget Billings attended a birthday party in Bethel on Friday.

The fall leaves have finally come upon us in full glory. This is my favorite time of year, because everything seems so fresh and alive. I hope everyone takes advantage of the last warm weather of the year to get out and look at nature.

That's it from North Woodstock this week!

By ELEANOR NELSON

Tuesday, Albert and Eleanor Nelson had a new Preimstar Satellite installed for the T.V. Others in town having it are Albert and Carole Nelson, Arthur and Phyllis Adams, Dee and Cheryl Barker, Walter and Carolyn Heino, Edward and Delilah Millett. It's nice to have more channels to choose from, and one channel is all westerns, which pleases some people. It's really nice.

We went to our camp at Wilson's Mills last Friday and a man had to move his big logging truck to let us get by on "our road." Albert, Jr., came up later to do some bird hunting. We saw two moose on the way up and one on the way home. The camp always looks good, and there are four less red squirrels there now. They are very destructive, but there is one left. I hope he doesn't meet up with a friend! Maybe he will go elsewhere.

This week we are getting the truck and car ready for the winter, and it's nice to have a son as service manager to look after us. By the way, his son Matthew just won second prize in the Cookie Contest at Fryeburg Fair and received $25. His recipe was Easy Peanut Butter Cookies.

The Oxford County Republican meeting of Oct. 11 has been rescheduled for Tuesday, Oct. 18, at the Franklin Grange on Route 26 in Bryant Pond, 5:30 to 6:30 supper and meeting. This change is due to a conflict of schedules.

Oxford County United Parish Sunday School begins on Oct. 16 at 9:30 a.m. at the East Stoneham Church. Don't forget the public Harvest Supper at the East Stoneham Church on Oct. 13, 5 to 6:30 p.m. -- corned beef and cabbage, and all the good veggies plus desserts and beverages.

On Oct. 15, same place at 5 to 6:30 there is a benefit supper for Theresa McNulty. This will be a baked bean supper with brown bread, salads, rolls, casseroles, pies and beverages, etc. It's good to help one another.

Betsy Wilson is still in the hospital and seems to be getting better.

Greenwood City

By COLISTA MORGAN

Twice this week the sun left a pink glow in the water of the pond. Night seems to come so suddenly these days. I have tried sometimes to mark the moment when day slips into night but I haven't been able to do so. The darkness takes over the valley, and once it raced with the wind all afternoon piling up over the hills. They ran like mad up and over the valley. I never knew which got there first. The rain came and beat both.

One evening a star appeared clear and pure above Patch Mountain, and the moon came above the hills glowing on the water like a candle from the sky. The brief warmth of the sun had gone and the coolness of the night had arrived. But the mountains were there against the sky. "Mountains of my youth/Green and fresh and sweet/Where villages take root/And pines with heaven meet/Mountains purple and shadowed/On an autumn day/When clouds to earth are bowed/And leaves drift on the highway/Summits white in winter/Suffused with red at sundown/With hemlocks green forever/On slopes where scarred rocks frown."

Gwen Frostic says, "thus there is no beginning... and no ending... only a slow blending... day into night... fall into winter into spring; beauty to the eye that beholds it..."

On Sunday, this week, Ann wasn't with us, for she had to go to Boothbay which in some way was connected with the work which she does. Robert and Jennett from Windsor came, also David and Mary, to join us for dinner.

I had minor surgery on my right arm on Tuesday. It was doing fine, but I am so right-handed that I find it awkward to do things, especially to write.

On last Thursday, Dot Betts drove several of us to Ledgewood in Windham to visit with Doris Hayes. The following went: Dot Betts, Dot Ross, Avis Stelhorn, Louvie Coffin, Lettie Brooks and Colista Morgan. She was delighted to see us and we were to see her.

John and Dot Betts attended the Eastern States Fair recently.

The "leaf peepers" were out in force on the opening weekend of October. Jeannine Lauher of Channel 8 News announced on Monday, Oct. 3, that her leaf peeping trip over Evans Notch was a beautiful one, which she enjoyed immensely. Sometimes we who live with all that beauty so close by fail to appreciate what we have so near at hand that others must drive miles to see. We are fortunate indeed. Much of this past week has seen cooler temperatures, and we've had our first couple of frosts. The bird and animal kingdom have been showing up at our feeders as well, as if they know that winter is approaching. I've had a cute little chipmunk who has been filling up the pockets in his cheeks constantly all day long (he looks like he had the mumps) and scampering away to stow his good fortune in a safe cupboard for winter's worst days, when he will want to stay inside his little, warm nest. The first chickadees have appeared, and this year's robins, who haven't lost all their spots, are filling up on the wild apples and grapes before they head out for warmer climes. Our catbird is still here and still making use of the bird bath, however chilly the mornings -- can't call him a dirty bird!

Clarice Gibson reports that all they have left in their orchard now are about 10 or 20 bushels of apples, and by the time this paper goes to print they will long be harvested. By the way, treat yourself to Gibson's newly pressed apple cider -- it's like nectar from the Gods. You will be glad you did. Stock up for a Halloween treat and a Thanksgiving toast. There's nothing as good in this part of the country. Enjoy.

Eldest daughter Debby came up the last week of September, and we made sweet cucumber and bread and butter pickles together. Hummm, good! Thanks to Debby go out again, as always.

Audrey Franklyn is all moved out now to her new mobile home in Standish. We were all saddened to see her go, oldsters and youngsters alike. She wasn't here long, but her ways captured our hearts. Good luck, old pal! Keep in touch.

Josie Greenwood returned home from California where she had been the past several weeks at the side of her ailing brother. He did not progress as well as expected and is now in a nursing home on the West Coast. Anyway, Josie, welcome home.

Elaine Packard Weston called on me one day last week, and we journeyed to Gorham and had lunch. Old friends and old times renewed are great.

Speaking of which, Richard Duplessis of Pooh Corner Farm delivered some of our winter's wood last week. I used to work with Richard at the Maine Conservation School years ago. We worked hard but had a lot of fun as well. (If you're reading this, Louie -- how many sides of beef have you used a chainsaw on lately?)

Our sincerest sympathies are extended to the family of Shirley Buker who passed away on Oct. 3 after battling a long illness. Family and friends from here attended the services.

A lot of children took advantage of the Teachers' Workshop last week to attend Fryeburg Fair.

Everyone spent a lot of hard-earned money, but had a good time.

Kathy Sweetser has employment at Andy's Kitchen.

Well, guess that's all for now folks. Keep the Faith and God Bless. Until next week then--

Late News Flash -- Unheard of in these parts -- a huge wild turkey spotted on the 3rd of October in Bev Corriveau's field. As it flew away, its red wattle showed plainly. Man the roasting pans! Thanksgiving approaches!

Lola Dillingham is continuing her sale at the Union Church this weekend.

October birthdays being celebrated this month are: Karon Wing, Aaron Bean, Linsey Record, Rosalie Poland. May you all have a happy day. Also, my sister Evelyn and husband Jim will be celebrating their wedding anniversary on Oct. 17. They live in Campton, N.H.

My grandson, Ryan Wing, had his senior pictures taken this week. Ryan is my oldest grandchild and it doesn't seem possible he'll be graduating next spring.

Many neighbors are attending the Fryeburg Fair this week. I haven't been for many years but remember how large and interesting it was. I hear it's even bigger now.

Larry Billings, curator, Woodstock Historical Society reports that the society observes that the author Gertrude Stein wrote many interesting things about art and literature. The society is always looking for new members. All you have to do to join is pay dues. The rewards are well worth it, and you can make a contribution to your area.

Joan Poland has improved greatly since her fall a while ago. She has returned to her work at Perham's Mineral Store a couple hours a day.

It is such a beautiful day today. It almost makes you think that summer could return anytime, but I know better. The leaves sure are beautiful now.

Quote of the Week: "I've learned that our eyes are placed in front because it is more important to look ahead than to look back."

West Paris

By MIRIAM INMAN

Lorenzo (Rennie) Cole, a former resident here in West Paris, has now returned after living in South Paris and most recently in Virginia with his daughter, Priscilla Durden. He is now living with his daughter, Mary Jane (Cole) Patterson and her husband Roger on Main Street in the Masonic Building, and he would very much enjoy having company and see his former friends.

The Historical Society will hold a 6 p.m. polluck supper, and meeting to follow, on Monday, Oct. 17. Lempi Cyr and Betty Jones are in charge of supper preparations. The entertainment will be in charge of each member, by telling about something of "yester-year." Sounds like a reminiscing good time. Vernon and Miriam Inman attended the 87th Infantry Reunion in Louisville, Ky., last week from Wednesday through Friday night. The weather was quite a bit warmer down there!

Locke Mills

By LORRAINE MILLS

Last week, when I should have been getting my news in I was instead in a doctor's office being told I had sciatica. Certainly I had so much pain I could hardly walk. My daughter has it and she's been in pain for a couple months, and after all the expensive tests she's had, there still has been no cause found, so I was fully prepared for a long haul, but a few days later I hardly have any pain. I'm grateful for that but wish Mark could be so lucky, or rather fortunate. I don't believe in luck. She's trying to cope with the pain while attending a full semester load of college classes and trying to keep up with the housework. Jon is going to classes during the day and working five hours at Burrelle's after that, so he can't help much. I feel a bit guilty because her troubles seemed to have started with her helping me get the rug out of my living room, and although she pointed out that it could have been carrying all those newspapers when she had a paper route. I still wish I had wanted her to help me get the rug out of my living room, but we never seem to have hindsight before forethought. Alas.

I had a call from my son Ralph the other evening, which rather surprised me because he doesn't call much unless it's my birthday or he's returning a call I left him on his

TAD. He's been having a problem with Smokey, who is the original Peck's Bad Boy of the cat kingdom and, therefore, is the one he's most fond of, as is often the case for some obscure reason. Smokey had been going off and being gone for a week or two at a time and it worries Ralph. This time, however, the call was to let off a bit of steam and although I sympathize I had to smile a bit (you can do that over the phone -- no see-a-phone for me!) as he proceeded to sputter that he got home early the other day and saw Smokey meeting a school bus and then following a little girl, who lives down the street, home. So at least the mystery of the missing cat is solved. But, as I pointed out to Ralph, he got the cat from a family whose little girl used to dress Smokey up in doll clothes and ride him around in her doll carriage. It's hard to beat an act like that.

Marianne and Leslie Gammon of East Waterford held birthday celebrations for Charlie Knight, who was 72, and his granddaughter Dianne, who was 26, and for Jennifer, wife of his grandson Bruce Campbell, who, wisely maybe, doesn't count them even though she's young enough to. Anyhow they all celebrated them together on the 24th of September.

The trailer across the street that Cindy Lord and Joe Gross vacated is occupied once more and there are at least a couple children, which is nice to see. Most of us in the neighborhood are, as the saying goes, getting up there, so young people are a welcome addition.

Charlie and Jeannette Knight visited Beverly Sylvester and son John in Andover one evening. They also visited Jeannette's brother, Walter Sylvester, in Hanover on Saturday evening.

Debbie Brown came and got the dog kennel she'd loaned me the other evening. Owen is back to work but he still is not feeling well from his recent bout with bronchitis. There's a lot of it around.

North Newry

The Recreation Committee and Sunday River will be issuing ski gear to Newry students in SAD44 this Friday and Saturday, Oct. 14-15, at the Newry Town Office. Students who would like to use skis, boots and poles free of charge for the 1994-95 ski season should come to the Town Office between 3 and 6 p.m. Friday or 10 to 12 a.m. on Saturday. An adult should accompany them to sign for equipment, and remember to bring your ski socks. If you can't make it either of these times, please contact Gail Sysko at 824-3244.

On Saturday, there will be a Harvest Potluck Supper at the Grange Hall, 6 p.m. All are welcome, and we hope to see you there.

Bea Lowell, Rena Powers and Irene Hadfield enjoyed a Foliage Trip by bus on Oct. 5 with the Bethel Senior Citizens. They traveled through Gorham, Franconia, Notch and Lincoln, N.H., and returned via the Kancamagus Highway and Fryeburg. Their next meeting will be Oct. 12 at West Bethel Grange Hall with a good old-fashioned New England boiled dinner.

Theresa Totti, my niece from Rhode Island, spent a few days here in North Newry with me and went bowling with the "Newry Bowling Gang," which included Betsy Clark, Karlene Bachelder, Gil Seeley, Doris Parent, Louise Tetley and Olive Anderson. On the overall scores, Betsy was high on the triples and singles with one string of 101. Of the "Righties," Louise was high on the singles beating Theresa by two pins, and she was also high on the triples. Betsy had six spares, Karlene had three spares, Gil had two spares, Theresa had one spare and two strikes, Louise had one strike and one spare, Doris and Olive each had one spare.

Happy Birthday to Pat (Morton) Greig. And all others born in the sign of Libra, Sept. 24-Oct. 23. "Not to be taken too seriously".... These natives like to listen to romantic music and surround themselves with beauty. They make great diplomats and strategists as they dislike discord. But there is an iron hand in that velvet glove because the aggressiveness is not usually obvious. They are easy going, idealistic and romantic and have a very refined appearance, though they can be flirtatious and frivolous at times. Their fortunate stone is the opal which bestows hope. Their favorite colors are all shades of blue, yellow and pastel green. Their best day is Friday. Their place of opportunity is Wisconsin. Their favorite flowers are roses -- pink ones, yellow ones -- daisies and violets. Famous people born in this sign are: Jimmy Carter, Oct. 1; George Washington, Oct. 6; and Eleanor Roosevelt, Oct. 11. Happy Birthday to you all.

West Paris

Howdy, folks. Today started off with real nice looking weather, but now it has partly clouded in, so it's hard to tell just what will happen before night. We got our first frost of the season here yesterday, and maybe we'll get our first snow of the season today. It is nearly cold enough for that to happen.

Peggy went to do her card work at Rite Aid Drug Stores in South Paris and Bridgton last Monday, but I didn't seem to feel like doing much. I did do up some of the dirty laundry that I had, but that was about it.

Tuesday morning, I called to see about getting an appointment with my doctor, but got an appointment to see the nurse practitioner instead.

That afternoon, we went to West Paris Village, where we picked up Bertha Benoit and then left for Norway. We stopped at Bessey Auto Sales where Peggy and I changed to her car and Bertha went on her way with her truck. (Peggy had taken her car to Bessey's the preceding Saturday to find the problem with it, and they had found that the alternator wasn't working. They took the alternator up to Ron Heath's Garage in Woodstock for rebuilding and had called Peggy earlier in the day on Tuesday and told her that her car was ready.) We went on to keep my appointment with the nurse practitioner, who took a culture of my throat. It was finally decided that I just had one of those viruses and there wasn't much they could do to help.

Peggy went to some of the surrounding towns on Wednesday to put up some posters advertising the West Paris Craft Sale to be held Oct. 15. When in Locke Mills she also called on friends Helen Chase and Evelyn Johnson. Helen seems to be doing quite well and was hoping to soon be able to ride to Lewiston to have her eyes checked.

I began to feel some better on Thursday and was anxious to get back outside to do some work, and that is what I did. I dug the last of the potatoes that I had raised, and then dismantled all of the pole bean framework that I use. I also gathered together what I had to put into West Paris Grange's exhibit at Fryeburg Fair. Peggy made a round cake and decorated it to resemble one of those Halloween scarecrows. Our good neighbor Mary Lovejoy picked up what we had to exhibit on Thursday evening, as she was leaving for Fryeburg early on Friday.

My squashes were planted where the soil gets dry in the summer unless we get quite a lot of rain, so it has been dry this summer and the squashes didn't grow as large as they should have. I gathered them on Friday and put those that I wanted to keep for a while through a chlorox solution, which I think helps keep them from rotting quite as quick. Then I spent several hours peeling and preparing smaller squashes ready to cook. We completely cook our squash and then put it into plastic containers for the freezer.

I worked more at cleaning up the gardens on Saturday. Friends came and picked the tomatoes. We've seen so many tomatoes this fall that now it's nice to have someone else pick them.

Peggy attended the dance at West Paris Grange Hall Saturday evening.

Sunday afternoon, we traveled to Bethel to attend the memorial services for Hulda Stevens at the Methodist Church. Hulda was well known and many friends attended her memorial services. The room at the church was filled nearly to full capacity. Hulda will be missed for a long time. It is sad when such a valuable life comes to an end. Peggy and I were attending the same Grange meeting that Hulda was planning to attend when the accident prevented it.

After leaving the church, we traveled up Sunday River with the intention of visiting Lina Reynolds at the home of Eddy and Julie Daye, but found nobody at home. As we were leaving for home we stopped at the Sunday River Gem Shop and visited a few minutes with Roberta Bean Saunders.

Mary Lovejoy tells me that she visited Tammy Farnum in Bryant Pond on Wednesday, and Priscilla Bret of West Paris on Sunday.

There will be a dance at West Paris Grange Hall on Oct. 15, with music by the Richard Felt Orchestra. Don't forget the Craft, Food and White Elephant Sale to be held at West Paris Grange Hall on Oct. 15, 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. There are more tables available, and to reserve a table call Peggy Blake at 674-3872 or Mary Lovejoy at 674-2147. The price of tables is a bargain at $3 each.

There will be a Flu Clinic at West Paris Grange Hall on Oct. 25, 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. This will be serviced by Bethel Area Health Center at a price of $7 for those paying and free to those with a Medicare card.

BETHEL ALLIANCE CHURCH MISSIONARY CONFERENCE

The Bethel Alliance Church's Missionary Conference will feature Wesley Nevius and Tedman Heglund.

Mr. Nevius and his wife, Corrine, have served for two years in the rural areas of Cote d'Ivoire and have worked for two years starting churches in the port city of Abidjan.

Mr. Heglund and his wife, Judith, have spent 23 years in starting churches in the interior of Irian Jaya among the Ikan tribe, assisting in medical ministries, and recently working with the Old and New Testament manuscripts in the native language for the Indonesian Bible Society.

Services will be held Oct. 15-19. For more information call 824-2289.

Telstar Guidance

Three Telstar High School seniors spent three days training to be leaders by performing a number of group activities such as rescuing a "baby," crossing a brook on a rope bridge and using a pulley to provide fuel to a downed "airplane."

The young leaders' program sponsored by the Army National Guard was held at the Bog Brook training site in Gilead, off Route 2, on Sept. 24, 25 and 26.

The students were selected by the faculty, administration, and guidance department of Telstar and invited to participate by Marcel Chasse of the Army National Guard Lewiston Armory. The students are: Tim Remington, Joel Peaslee, and Kevin Rosenberg. In addition, Mrs. Joanne Chase, Telstar High School counselor; Mr. Ted Davis, THS principal; and Mrs. Kathy Cole, prevention coordinator for the Bethel Regional Partnership, attended program events.

The three Telstar students, along with 38 students from six other area high schools, were given a variety of mental and physical problems to solve in groups. Each student had the opportunity to be the group leader at some point in the training program. The students also participated in some classroom activities designed to help them to know themselves better, such as an assignment to draw a coat of arms reflecting themselves, their experiences, and their lives.

The three-day experience culminated in graduation exercise, during which each school was given a scrapbook of pictures, and each student was given a T-shirt, a hat, and a diploma.

Middle school guidance

Things have been happening in middle school guidance: schedules have been fine-tuned, arrangements for two eighth-grade awareness programs finalized, and plans for an off-campus training put into motion.

Mr. Hart is coming on the 18th of October with his NOVA students to make five different presentations to the entire eighth-grade class. The students sharing information about opportunities in the different programs have been very successful in providing a real picture of the NOVA programs. In an effort to provide all students with information that would be beneficial in making decisions about the future, Mr. Hart will be presenting workshops on options following high school. These will run consecutively for four Tuesdays, beginning Nov. 1.

Parents will have a chance to hear about the options after high school at an evening program designed just for them.

One of Mrs. Hannon's goals for the year is to institute a job shadowing program this year for all eighth-graders. Be ready to hear from her if you run a business in the area.

A brief update from the high school this week: the winner of the FACT Lobster Raffle was Stephen Blake of Bethel. The Freshman Awareness Committee sends a big thank you to all those people who supported this fund-raiser. Important upcoming dates: PSAT testing at Telstar on Oct. 15 and Post-Secondary Planning Workshops for juniors and seniors and parents on Oct. 27 and 28.

PROJECT GRADUATION

Project Graduation will hold a kick-off meeting for the Class of '95 and their parents on Tuesday, Oct. 18, 6:30 p.m., in the Home Ec. room at Telstar High School.

The committee meets the third Tuesday of each month at 6:30 p.m. If you would like more information, please contact Lori Wadsworth at 824-2136, Gail Wight at 824-2497, or Kathie Cole at 836-3620.

America's Classical Music - Jazz is an exciting course which has been very popular as an Elderhostel offering. The two-session class will present a review of jazz music from the 1920s to the '60s, with a variety of selections from the extensive collection of instructor Ed Hitchcock. The class is designed to introduce younger folks to the heritage of jazz music as well as to offer a nostalgic journey to those of an older generation. The class will be held on Tuesday nights, Oct. 18 and 25, from 7 to 9 at Telstar. The fee is $15.

Mamma Tongue will open Gould arts series

Driving African tribal rhythms will fuse with the sounds of progressive Western jazz when the Gould Academy Performing Arts Series opens on Thursday, Oct. 13, with a concert by the highly acclaimed ensemble Mamma Tongue. The 7:30 p.m. performance in Bingham Auditorium is open to the public.

Founded more than a decade ago by jazz musician/composer John McDowell, who studied African drumming in Amsterdam with Gambian drumming master Karamo Sabally, the group is comprised of musicians of African, American Indian, and Western heritage. Their high-energy music is a blend of powerful African rhythms and the sounds of modern jazz, with strong vocals in both English and American Indian lyrics.

John McDowell and the members of Mamma Tongue have worked extensively with groups of school children, providing the opportunity for a glimpse into the complex and captivating culture of tribal Africa through concerts and workshops demonstrating the rhythms and techniques of African drumming. Prior to the full concert at Gould, the group will present two lecture/demonstrations, sponsored by the Mahoosuc Arts Council, to students at Telstar Regional High School and Middle School.

Tickets for the Thursday evening performance are $5 for adults and $3 for students, and are available at the door. For further information, please contact Vicki Rackliffe at 824-3575.

Gould 7, Kents Hill 1

The Gould Academy field hockey team overwhelmed Kents Hill Saturday, Oct. 8, winning 7-1. Huskie point scorers were Meredith Mason with three goals, Marie Lowell with three goals and Amanda Sysko with one. The girls play again today (Wednesday) at home at 3 p.m. against Wayneville.

Lori Davis logged the assist on Fyrburg's second goal. The Rebels' record stands at 7-3. The team finishes up the season this week against two tough Mountain Valley Conference opponents -- Jay and Leavitt. The Rebels beat Jay 1-0 in overtime earlier in the season. Coach Gail Wight said the team needs to tie or win against at least Jay this week to be guaranteed a playoff berth. Leavitt has already captured the MVC title and is undefeated so far for the season. The girls finish up the regular season this week with a home game against Jay today (Wednesday) at 3:30 p.m. and an away game at Leavitt on Friday.

In Loving Memory of
Richard G. Hutchins
Murdered 2 yrs. ago
Oct. 9, 1992

The things we feel so deeply are the hardest things to say, but we your family loved you in a very special way. They say that memories are golden, while that may be true, but we never wanted memories, we only wanted you. You said you were getting weary. He did what he thought best. He put his arms around you and whispered, come and rest. The Golden Gates stood open 2 years ago today. With good byes left unspoken, you gently slipped away. The flowers we put upon your grave may wither away and decay, but the love for him who sleeps beneath will never fade away.
